Creative Brief: Tupperware

What do we want to accomplish?

Position Tupperware as the reliable solution that prevents everyday kitchen disasters (preventing crimes!!!). The campaign aims to remind consumers that the right container can save meals, reduce food waste, and eliminate messy spills making life easier in real, relatable moments. Tupperware is the ultimate partner in crime, preventing jailtime for spilled food.

Who are we talking to?

Primary audience:

Young adults (18–35), including college students, young professionals, and busy households who frequently store leftovers, meal prep, or transport food.

Secondary audience:

Long time Tupperware users who already understand the value of durable, spill-proof containers but may not think about the brand in modern contexts. And trying to attract the audience we haven't hit yet, avoiding families.

What does the audience think right now?

Many people view food containers as interchangeable, cheap kitchen items. Younger consumers may see Tupperware as an older brand and assume any container works the same. Not knowing that no name brands have LOW quality.

What does the client want them to think?

Tupperware is the dependable solution that prevents messy accidents and protects your food. When life gets chaotic, Tupperware keeps everything contained.

Why should they think that?

Tupperware products are designed with tight seals and durable materials that prevent leaks and spills. Unlike flimsy containers, they are built to keep food secure, even in clumsy, real-life situations.

What is our message?

Life gets messy. Your food storage shouldn't. Spillage is truly a crime in Tupperwares eyes.

What is our BIG IDEA / UNIVERSAL TRUTH?

Everyone has experienced the frustration of spilling food, whether it's leftovers in the fridge, a lunch in a backpack, or a plate slipping from the counter. The right container can turn a kitchen disaster into a saved meal, and a new home for the leftovers sitting on the counter.

A Dark Red Stain...

Your computer bag.
A dark red stain..

Your notebooks are bleeding.
Your headphones are weeping.

The crime scene?
A loose lid.
Dark red tomato sauce.
Your lunch turned into evidence.

But it doesn't have to end this way.

Tupperware seals tight with a snap that stays shut, keeping the sauce where it belongs.

No leaks.
No mess.
No spilled spaghetti.

Tupperware. The innocent suspect.

The Accomplice...

Sirens echo..
Panic settles in.
The leftover evidence..

It must be hidden.
Before the red and blue start flashing.

We don't leak.
We don't talk.
Our lids are sealed.

Whatever happened in your kitchen.
We'll keep it contained.

You clean the knives.
We'll hide the mess.

Tupperware.
Your partner in.. Storage.

The Silent Witness?

A single flickering light.
No windows.
Nothing but a cold metal table.

WHERE WERE YOU?

They're waiting for something to slip.

The suspect..Tupperware..
Unflinching.
Airtight.
Immovable.

They press harder, looking for cracks.
A sign of weakness.

But there isn't a loose end found.

The story never breaks.
Not under heat.
Not under pressure.

Whatever was inside, stays inside.

Tupperware.

1) A dark Red Stain:

Your computer bag.
A dark red stain is spreading.
Your notebooks are bleeding.
Your headphones are weeping.
The crime scene?
A loose lid.
Dark red tomato sauce.
Your lunch turned into evidence.
But it doesn't have to end this way.

Tupperware seals ~~the~~ tight with a snap that stays shut, keeping the sauce where it belongs.

No leaks.

No mess.

① Unlike your friend, Tupperware's lips (and lids) are sealed.

1) Spilling your secrets to friends? There's a reason it's called spilling, the mess is going to spread. Your bestie's lips may ^{not} be big, but her mouth sure is. Good luck cleaning that mess up! Tupperware's sauce would never spill out, they keep the lids sealed and secrets in, no one will ever know, once clicked shut your leftovers are secret safe until you open it back up. Whether it's soup, spaghetti, salmon or secrets, Tupperware has you covered, make us your new bestie.

2) Tupperware's lids never crack, even under pressure. Your soup and secrets are forever safe in ~~these~~ our airtight containers, the lids (lips) never pop open behind your back, they'll always protect tomorrow's leftovers. No one will ever know what's inside, unlike your bestie who spills all your sauce, Tupperware would ~~not~~ choose reliability, and trust, choose Tupperware for all things, even secrets.

3) Some people can't keep a secret, Tupperware can. With airtight lids that snap ~~to~~ tight and stay put, your lunch stays fresh and your soup stays exactly where it belongs, inside the container. No leaks in your bag. No spills in your car. No drama in the fridge, just a Seal you can trust.

Storage that works as hard as you do.

④ We don't do single use situationships

1) We're in it for the long haul for real. No ghosting. No one night only leftovers. Tupperware is built to last through late night snacks, next day lunches, and every prep in between. Because commitment looks better than single use trash. Remember, real relationships are reusable.

2) We're not into flings. Not in love and definitely not in leftovers. Tupperware is made for commitment. The kind that shows up again and again without ghosting your fridge after one microwave session. Strong enough for meal prep Sundays, cute enough for desk lunch dates, durable enough ~~to~~ to survive the dishwasher and most definitely not only for late night snacks. Because if it can't handle the morning after, it's not for us.

3) Tupperware believes in long term relationships, with our food, our routines and our planet. Tupperware is designed to be reused, reheated and relied ~~on~~ on for years. Not tossed around after one ~~encounter~~ encounter. Thoughtfully made, built to last. Ready for whatever is next. Commitment isn't scary, it's smart.

⑤ Heal that inner "finish your plate."

Show at least five drafts of the copy of your print ads.

3) Finishing your plate isn't a personality trait. It's a habit you can outgrow. Tupperware helps you pause, pack it up, and ~~stop~~ listen to your hunger cues. Airtight, reusable, and built to last. It turns leftovers into intention, not obligation. Because wellness isn't about wasting less by overeating. It's about saving it for later.
